Update November 2010

Positive Response to QFile and Meet Online

The new broadband services QFile (mega file transfer) and Meet Online (video conferencing) were very well received at the 2010 Nunavut Trade Show in Iqaluit. A press conference was held on September 22nd at the Arctic Winter Games Arena and the Hon. Leona Aglukkaq, Member of Parliament for Nunavut, Minister of Health and Minister Responsible for the North, attended from Ottawa via the new Meet Online service. The technology worked perfectly, showcasing by example one of the many practical uses for a public broadband video conferencing service in Nunavut.

At the SSi Micro / QINIQ trade show booth there was great interest by the public as they participated in demos and tried out the new products. Since that time, a number of new customers have signed up for QFile via the online registration site http://www.qiniq.com/qfile. Meet Online Enterprise, a multi-point service for corporations, is currently available for conferencing, video distribution, training, and government applications. Meet Online Business is a single point-to-point service for smaller organizations to enable face-to-face communication without the need for expensive hardware. This service is currently in the "early adopter" phase and will be available to the general public early in 2011. For more information on Meet Online, see http://www.qiniq.com/meetonline.
